

15 Emerging European Artists On The Rise

November 22, 2019 by Chelsea Coon

In a world that is constantly shifting, how can an artist sustain their creative practice and create artwork that leaves a lasting impression? We look at 15 emerging European artists who are doing exactly that and more. These artists are making an impact in the art world by communicating their creative visions and in the process, challenging what art has been, what art can be moving forward. Defined as both growing and further becoming prominent, these on the rise artists from Europe provide a unique perspective into their cultures. They are pushing their artistic practices to communicate what is possible within the visual and conceptual spaces of art today, using their work to examine and communicate larger shared issues of mortality, relationship to time, and space.

Star Clock at Night II - Sinta Tantra

Born and based in London, Sinta Tantra is a multidisciplinary artist working across painting and installation. Tantra has been included in numerous domestic and international exhibitions and additionally, has received commissions for public installations and site-specific murals. In her painting composition "Star Clock at Night II" abstractly speaks to the mechanics of the clock, while also alluding to the constellation placement of stars. Both the clock and the cosmos symbolically and literally have a relevance to all bodies.
